The father of modern education

John Amos Comenius

fundamental ideas :

- (1) learning foreign languages through the vernacular;
- (2) obtaining ideas through objects rather than words;
- (3) starting with objects most familiar to the child to introduce him to both the new language and the more remote world of objects;
- (4) giving the child a comprehensive knowledge of his environment, physical and social, as well as instruction in religious, moral, and classical subjects;
- (5) making this acquisition of a compendium of knowledge a pleasure rather than a task; and
- (6) making instruction universa
